Windsor Strategy Partners, Inc.

President and Chief Executive Officer Hi. My name is Paul and I like to think of myself as a creative actuary, whose job is to find innovative solutions to healthcare problems. I'm also one of those rare mathematicians who derives great joy from working with both numbers and people. I don't like to shuffle paper. Rather, I like to make things happen. At Windsor, I have the privilege of being part of a select team of professionals making things happen for our clients. You can count on me to delve deeply into the numbers to discover meaningful patterns and solutions to your most challenging problems. You can also count on me to bring humor and fun to any discussion of "the numbers." I will make your business my business.
