

James Froschmayer
VP, Strategic Partnerships
Artemis by Nomi Health

James Froschmayer is a seasoned healthcare analytics leader with more than a decade of experience partnering with providers, payers, and self-insured employers to drive down healthcare costs and enhance population health outcomes.

As Vice President of Strategic Partnerships at Artemis by Nomi Health, he leads the expansion of the Artemis analytics platform into new markets and builds key partnerships to accelerate growth. With a deep expertise in healthcare economics, James is passionate about leveraging analytics and innovative technologies to disrupt the "Iron Triangle" of healthcare, improving access to quality care while reducing overall healthcare expenses.

Before joining Artemis in June 2017, James held leadership roles in consulting and analytics at The Advisory Board Company, Willis Towers Watson, Children's Hospital of Wisconsin, and Optum. He earned an MBA from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and a Bachelor of Science from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He is based in Ann Arbor, Michigan.
