

Tyler Willse
COO
Allegeant LLC

Tyler is an accomplished executive with over a decade of experience in employee benefits consulting and healthcare administration. As the Chief Operating Officer and Partner of Allegeant, a boutique third-party administrator and employee benefit advisor, Tyler is deeply committed to addressing the rising costs of healthcare. His expertise lies in delivering innovative risk mitigation strategies and operational efficiencies that enhance the client experience.

A passionate advocate for leveraging technology to drive transformation, Tyler is particularly fascinated by the potential of Generative AI and Large Language Models (LLMs) to revolutionize healthcare administration. He believes these cutting-edge technologies offer unprecedented opportunities to streamline complex processes, reduce costs, and solve many of the inefficiencies that burden the healthcare system today.

Since joining Allegeant in 2013, Tyler has championed a customer-centric approach while continually seeking ways to modernize and optimize benefit solutions. His leadership reflects a dedication to staying at the forefront of industry innovation, ensuring Allegeant remains agile in a rapidly evolving market.

Tyler holds a Bachelor of Science in Finance from Tulane University and continues to be an influential voice in the intersection of technology and healthcare benefits.